

AGN-156A Salient

integrates the sodium light source, the polarimeter in one unit. It allows to read the circular scale directly without the scale reading and calculation simultaneously. Principle: The polarimeter is an instrument used to measure the rotation of the plane of polarization of light by optically active liquids. It is used to determine the concentration and contents of substances. The plane of polarization produced by the polarizer produces plane polarized light passes through the sample substance. The plane of polarization is then analysed by the analyser to the eye. The shadow field can be observed. The optical rotation is measured with a scale.

Integrated Lighting System:

is a complete system associated with the polarimeter. It has been eliminated. Power measurement of Optical Specific Rotation of components are made. Aluminum and Stainless steel and a long trouble-free life. with Integrated Lighting System. Waveform Capture at least 4X Stabilization. Power line voltage : 220V. optical rotation : $\pm 180^\circ$. count : 0.050 . Magnifying glass : 4 times . Source of light : 5893A0 . Working power : 20 W
